Review: This exhilarating compilation is a joy from beginning to end. Drawing from the vast resources in the M-G-M vaults, album producers George Feltenstein and Bradley Flanagan have culled together a collection of songs with a Latin beat that were either composed for or performed in some of the great musical films of the 1940s and early '50s. Prominently featured in many of them is Xavier Cugat, whose infectious rhythms defined better than most the South of the Border craze surveyed in this CD, and Carmen Miranda, the Brazilian bombshell, who made Latin music so popular through her exotic songs and wild performances. Definitely the kind of album that will lift up your moods in record time.

Review: One can always find faults in a compilation of this kind and wonder why the producers chose one selection over another, particularly when the programmatic concept seems so broad to begin with, and could include so many films from the M-G-M catalogue. Why, for instance, should there be four selections with Vic Damone, and two from Deep in My Heart? And does The Long, Long Trailer or Looking for Love, admittedly minor films, really qualify, when there are no selections from Rose Marie or Gigi? And what about such blockbusters as The Bandwagon, Bells Are Ringing, An American in Paris, The Harvey Girls, In the Good Old Summertime, Brigadoon, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers or The Unsinkable Molly Brown? Conversely, not everything could be included, and there may be, one hope, a second volume. So, given these various considerations, this compilation is a romantic feast that will no doubt bring a smile and a sigh to anyone listening, with many favorites included in the mix ("Stranger In Paradise," "You Are My Lucky Star," "True Love," "Make Believe"), some welcome rediscoveries ("Imagine," "How Do You Like Your Eggs in the Morning?," "I Know That You Know"), and only a couple of mister and misses. It may be the ideal CD to play on Valentine's Day, or any day when the mood hits.

Miramax Films' Greatest Hits

Review: Another well-known independent studio, which has recently teamed with Hollywood Records to release its soundtrack, Miramax has enjoyed a distinguished career with films no one else seemed to want. The list of themes included here reads like a compendium of some of the best quality films seen in the past few years, from the Academy Award-winning The Postman, to such highly visible entries as The Piano, My Left Foot, Like Water for Chocolate, Cry the Beloved Country, Cinema Paradiso, Red, and The Crying Game. In the process, the set also culls together selections by some of the most important film scorers of the day, including Luis Bacalov, Ennio Morricone, John Barry, Rachel Portman, Ann Dudley, Hans Zimmer, and Zbigniew Preisner, to name only a few. The only reservations one may have about the set is the inclusion of a track from Pulp Fiction, which doesn't belong in such distinguished company, and the vocal by Boy George, from The Crying Game, which should have been replaced by an instrumental selection to conform with the moods set in the rest of the package.

Review: The sound quality is not always up to par, but both these releases are so much fun that one would have to be hardened to the point of insensitivity not to enjoy them.

The first CD, of course, dissects musically some of the outrageously far-fetched cliffhangers that were a Republic staple for many years in the 1940s and '50s. Anyone who has thrilled to the exploits of Captain Marvel, Zorro, King of the Royal Mounted, or Red Ryder, will love these musical snippets that evoke the endless series in which these characters appeared, along with many others like the evil Fu Manchu or the mysterious Dr. Satan.

But to these ears, the real plum here is the second volume, which concentrates on the westerns, when John Wayne was still a Mesquiteer, who rode the range to correct the wrongs in series that seemed to go on forever, week after week, and always featured the same stock scenes. What singled out these serials were the scores that were written on a shoestring, often on the spur of the moment, and that were recorded under conditions that would seem laughable today (when the musicians were assembled, they were given a sketch of the score, and were asked to play the music, with the first take often being the only one). Without waxing nostalgic about a long gone era, these two CDs bring back memories that will no doubt bring some mist to many listeners' eyes.

Review: The concept behind the film title song originated with "Do Not Forsake Me Oh My Darling," which, in its cover version by Frankie Laine, probably saved the film from being a total disaster at the box office. As a result, feature films in the 1950s and '60s had to have title songs, some of them with lyrics hastily written to conform with a storyline that sometimes didn't lend itself for a sung treatment ("The Guns of Navarone," for example). Many of the most popular songs written for the movies during that time are found in these two compilations, often in their original soundtrack performances. As might be expected, there are some real gems, some classic performances, and an occasional dud. But overall, both CDs prove remarkably enjoyable.

Rubinstein): 16 The Good, The Badge And The Ugly (1:54).

Review: There is basically nothing wrong with these compilations, which combine together various selections from Varese-Sarabande's vast roster of soundtrack titles. The concept itself is sound, and whatever you want to call it, it's bound to attract some customers who would rather hear the main themes and/or selections from popular films, than be saddled with the whole soundtrack album. That's fine!

But even in cases like this, a certain amount of creativity must be taken into consideration, so that the selections assembled together do not collide, but blend effortlessly one into the other. And there's the rub: the selections here seem to have been taken at random, and put together just for the hell of it, without much care or consideration being paid to the way they flow. As a result, the program jumps from one type of film to another that has no relation to the previous one, creating in the process a wall of sound that puts the mind in overdrive after a while.

It's really a shame, because the selections are quite valid, and come most of the time from excellent scores by composers who are among the best in the business. But since they don't seem to have coupling restrictions in their contracts, what we get here is an undistinguished oleo that only bears a faint resemblance to a sound compilation.

The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra

Always and Forever: Movies' Greatest Love Songs

1996, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, conducted by John Mauceri; Arrangements: Alfred Newman, Mark McGurty, Brad Dechter, Christopher Palmer, Takayuki Hattori, Bruce Fowler, Robert Freeman; Orchestrations: Edward B. Powell, Alexander Courage, Leonid Raab, Emilie A. Bernstein, Robert Freeman; Featured Musicians: Dennis Karmazyn (cello), Bruce Dukov (violin), Karl Dumler (English horn, oboe), Susan Greenberg (flute), Gary Bovyer (clarinet), Louise DiTullio (alto flute); Guest Artists: Dave Koz (soprano sax), Sylvia McNair (soprano), Gil Shaham (violin), Phil Perry (vocals), Erich-Wolfgang Korngold (piano); Album Producer: John Mauceri; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: Love Is A Many Splendored Thing (S. Fain): 1 Love Is A Many Splendored Thing (2:19); Unchained (A. North): 2 Unchained Melody (3:26); Wuthering Heights (A. Newman): 3 Cathie's Theme (3:32); Forever Young (J. Goldsmith): 4 Love Theme (4:17); Peyton Place (F. Waxman): 5 Peyton Place (4:05); Room With A View: 6 Oh! Mio Babbino Caro (from Gianni Schicchi)(G. Puccini)(2:35); The Thief Of Bagdad (M. Rozsa): 7 Eternal Love (4:35); The Age Of Innocence (E. Bernstein): 8 The Age Of Innocence (4:43); Cinema Paradiso (E. Morricone): 9 Cinema Paradiso (7:44); Somewhere In Time (J. Barry): 10 Somewhere In Time (2:51); Escape Me Never (E.W. Korngold): 11 Love For Love (3:24); North By Northwest (B. Herrmann): 12 Conversation Piece (4:52); Four Weddings And A Funeral (R.R. Bennett): 13 Four Weddings And A Funeral (3:37); Laura (D. Raksin/J. Mercer): 14 Laura (3:52); Now Voyager (M. Steiner): 15 Now Voyager (4:30); An Affair To Remember (H. Warren/H. Friedhofer): 16 An Affair To Remember (2:39).

Review: John Mauceri and the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra lead the way through a serviceable but not particularly inspired collection of romantic film music staples, including Alex North's Unchained Melody, Alfred Newman's Wuthering Heights, Franz

Waxman's Peyton Place, David Raskin's Laura, Max Steiner's Now, Voyager and Hugo Friedhofer's An Affair to Remember. Along the way are interspersed classical pieces (i.e. Puccini's "Oh Mio Babbino Caro," heard in A Room With a View, and sung here by Sylvia McNair) and more modern selections, including Jerry Goldsmith's Forever Young (poorly rendered by popular saxophonist Dave Koz), John Barry's Somewhere in Time, Richard Rodney Bennett's Four Weddings and a Funeral, and Ennio Morricone's Cinema Paradiso. The only imaginative move here was to incorporate Erich Wolfgang Korngold's solo piano performance of "Love for Love" (from his score for Escape Me Never) into Maurceri and the Hollywood Bowl's rendition, but that seems to have been done more for novelty's sake than anything else. Competently performed but rather routine on the whole.

1993, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, conducted by John Mauceri; Arrangements: John Mauceri, Arthur Freed, Charles Gerhardt; Orchestrations: Christopher Palmer, Hugo Friedhofer; Album Producer: Michael Gore; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: The Great Waltz (J. Strauss/D. Tiomkin): 1 Main Title/Wiener Blut (2:38); Murder On The Orient Express (R.R. Bennett): 2 Waltz (3:33); Der Rosenkavalier (R. Strauss): 3 "Mit Mir" Waltz (4:39); The Snows Of Kilimanjaro (B. Herrmann): 4 Memory Waltz (5:26); Gigi (F. Loewe): 5 Main Title/Fountain Scene/Chez Maxim Waltz (6:13); Cinderella (S. Prokofiev): 6 Waltz (3:58); A Little Night Music (S. Sondheim): 7 The Night Waltzes (6:20); Candide (L. Bernstein): 8 Paris Waltz (3:06); Madame Bovary (M. Rozsa): 9 Waltz (4:42); Hotel Berlin (F. Waxman): 10 Cafe Waltzes (8:56); Jezebel (M. Steiner): 11 Waltz (2:09); The Prince And The Pauper (E.W. Korngold): 12 Flirtation (2:27); 13 La Valse (M. Ravel)(13:23); The Great Waltz (J. Strauss/D. Tiomkin): 14 Blue Danube and Final Sequence (6:08).

Review: Taking a cue from Dimitri Tiomkin's adaptation of music by Johann Strauss for The Great Waltz, John Mauceri and the Hollywood Bowl Orchestra recorded this album in $^{3}/_{4}$ time. High on the list are the waltzes written by Bernard Herrmann for The Snows of Kilimanjaro, by Miklos Rozsa for Madame Bovary, and by Max Steiner for Jezebel.

The inclusion of Richard Strauss' Der Rosenkavalier and Sergei Prekofiev's Cinderella seems an odd decision, but there is no denying the power and passion in the selections and the excellence in the performances.

Hollywood Dreams

1991, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, conducted by John Mauceri; Album Producer: Michael Gore; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: 1 Fanfare For A Bowl Concert (A. Schoenberg)(1:25); Carousel (R. Rodgers): 2 Heaven Effect/Carousel Waltz (4:50); Gone With The Wind (M. Steiner): 3 Main Title (4:24); The Firebird (I. Stravinsky): 4 Lullaby/Final Hymn (6:28); How To Marry A Millionaire (A. Newman): 5 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (:22); 6 Overture (6:25); A Place In The Sun (F. Waxman): 7 Suite (9:57); On The Waterfront (L. Bernstein): 8 Love Theme (3:43); The Wizard Of Oz (H. Stothart/H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg): 9 Concert Suite (11:03); Semyon Kotko (S. Prokofiev): 10 The Southern Night (5:11); The Adventures Of Robin Hood (E.W. Korngold): 11 Franfare and Love Scene (7:11); 12 Battle, Victory and Epilogue (3:55); Defending Your Life (M. Gore): 13 Finale (4:02); Dances With Wolves (J. Barry): 14 John Dunbar Theme (2:26); E.T. (J. Williams): 15 The Flying Theme (4:08).

Hollywood Nightmares

1994, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, conducted by John Mauceri; Album Producer: Michael Gore; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: Phantom Of The Opera (D. Savino/S. Perry): 1 Through The Looking Glass (1:05); King Kong (M. Steiner): 2 Overture (4:08); The Rite Of Spring (I. Stravinsky): 3 The Sacrifice (5:24); Jurassic Park (J. Williams): 4 Main Title (3:16); Vertigo (B. Herrmann): 5 Prelude and Scene d'amour (8:46); Spellbound (M. Rozsa): 6 Concerto for Piano and Orchestra (12:00); Body Heat (J. Barry): 7 Main Title (4:08); Sunset Boulevard (F. Waxman): 8 Sonata For Orchestra (13:45); The Omen (J. Goldsmith): 9 Main Title (3:23); Dracula (J. Williams): 10 Night Journeys (5:38); Dr. Jekyll And Mr. Hyde (F. Waxman): 11 Suite (10:11).

Review: Those thematic albums enable Mauceri and the Hollywood Bowl to cover two opposite aspects of film music, the "dreams" (whatever that might be, particularly when one considers the selections that evoke this concept) and the "nightmares" (with a much better choice in the themes). The selections are essentially standard, with Max Steiner's Gone With the Wind, Alfred Newman's How to Marry a Millionaire, Franz Waxman's A Place in the Sun, and Erich-Wolfgang Korngold's The Adventures of Robin Hood, among the choice cuts in the first CD; and Steiner's King Kong, Bernard Herrmann's Vertigo, John Williams' Jurassic Park, and Waxman's Sunset Boulevard, dominating the second CD. Performance and sonic qualities are superior.

Journey to the Stars

1995, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Hollywood Bowl Orchestra, conducted by John Mauceri; Album Producer: Tommy Krasker; Engineer: Joel Moss.

Selections: Aniara (K.B. Blomdahl): 1 Start: Vintergatan (:41); The Day The Earth Stood Still (B. Herrmann): 2 Outer Space (1:40); Star Trek V: The Final Frontier (J. Goldsmith): 3 Main Theme/March Of the Klingons (4:08); Forbidden Planet (L. & B. Barron): 4 Once Around Altair (1:12); The Bride Of Frankenstein (F. Waxman): 5-6 Creation Of The Female Monster/The Tower Explodes (11:06); Altered States (J. Corigliano): 7 Love Theme (4:04); Also Sprach Zarathustra (R. Strauss): 8 Prelude (1:48); 9 Atmospheres (G. Ligeti)(8:33); 2001: A Space Odyssey (A. North): 10 Fanfare (1:44); The Witches Of Eastwick (J. Williams): 11 The Devil's Dance (4:57); Forbidden Planet: 12 Robby Arranges Flowers/Zaps Monkey (:53); Edward Scissorhands (D. Elfman): 13 Main Title/Ice Dance (5:32); Things To Come (A. Bliss): 14 Main Title/War Montage/Pestilence/Happy March/The Building Of The New World/Attack On The Moon Gun/Epilogue (15:54); Forbidden Planet: 15 The Homecoming (:53); Star Wars (J. Williams): 16 Throne Room and Finale (7:43); Aniara (K.B. Blomdahl): 17 Kristal (1:21).

Review: This is a fairly hit and miss effort. Mauceri's rendition of Bernard Herrmann's "Outer Space" from The Day the Earth Stood Still is commendable, and one admires his fidelity to the original instrumentation, including the theremin (something Herrmann himself did not retain in his British Decca recording in the '70s). However, Mauceri's rendition of the creation and finale music from Waxman's Bride of Frankenstein is an outrage—adding sound effects and even a line of dialogue! Most of the selections are presented relatively intact and are performed with conviction (though the accompanying synthesizer in Goldsmith's Star Trek V sounds like a Casio toy keyboard). Interspersed throughout this album are snippets from the "score" for Forbidden Planet and other off-putting electronic noises, which add nothing except tacky gimmickry. The mix and recording quality are poor, and make the orchestra sound like a 35-piece television ensemble. Mauceri has done and continues to do much good work in popularizing film music, but he needs to reduce the more kitschy trappings (which spoil much of this album) from future recordings.

The Movies Go to the Hollywood Bowl

1990, Angel Records.

Album Notes: The Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Alfred Newman, Miklos Rozsa; Featured Soloist: Leonard Pennario (piano); Original Album Producer: Ralph O'Connor; Engineer: Carson Taylor; CD Engineer: Robert Norberg.

Selections: Captain From Castile (A. Newman): 1 Conquest (3:23); 2 Second Rhapsody (G. Gershwin)(14:16); David And Bathsheba (A. Newman): 3 23rd Psalm (3:24); The Robe (A. Newman): 4 Palm Sunday (2:14); 5 Hallelujah (2:52); 6 The Dream Of Olwen (C. Williams)(3:59); King Of Kings (M. Rozsa): 7 Nativity (2:10); 8 The Way Of The Cross (3:00); 9 Pieta (2:34); 10 King Of Kings Theme (2:48); Spellbound (M. Rozsa): 11 Spellbound Concerto (12:09); El Cid (M. Rozsa): 12 Overture (3:25); 13 Love Theme (4:15); 14 El Cid March (3:27).

Review: This volume compiles together recordings made in the 1960s by Alfred Newman and Miklos Rozsa, conducting the famed Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, a group of some of the best instrumentalists this side of Vine and Sunset. Superbly recorded in full stereo, they enabled both composers to revisit some of their most popular works, and to provide the sheen they might have missed when originally performed. This is particularly true of Alfred Newman, whose themes from Captain From Castile and David and Bathsheba had never been available in stereo before, and played in such an exciting way. Similarly, Rozsa's impressive Spellbound Concerto is given the superstar treatment, with Leonard Pennario as guest soloist, in a reading that is far superior to any that had been available up to that time.

Music from Hollywood

1995, Sony Music/Legacy Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 How The West Was Won (from How The West Was Won)(A. Newman/K. Darby)(3:12); 2 Laura (from Laura)(D. Raksin)(5:46); 3 Caesar's Assassination/Cleopatra's Entrance Into Rome (from Cleopatra)(A. North)(6:38); 4 Suite (from A Place In The Sun)(F. e) Around The World In Eighty Days (from Around The World In Eighty Days)(V. Young/S. Unger/H. Adamson), f) Hi-Lili, Hi-Lo (from Lili)(B. Kaper/H. Deutsch) (8:19); 7 Theme (from A Summer Place)(M. Steiner)(2:40); 8 The Memory Waltz (from The Snows Of Kilimanjaro)(B. Herrmann)(4:36); 9 North By Northwest (from North By Northwest)(B. Herrmann)(3:23); 10 The Green Leaves Of Summer (from The Alamo)(D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster)(4:16) Mahalia Jackson; 11 High Noon (from High Noon)(D. Tiomkin)(5:35); 12 Prelude (from Ben-Hur)(M. Rozsa)(4:01); 13 Parade Of The Charioteers (from Ben-Hur)(M. Rozsa)(3:28); 14 Conquest (from Captain From Castile)(A. Newman)(3:51).

Review: On September 25, 1963, the Composers and Lyricists Guild of America gave an extraordinary televised concert, with many of Hollywood's greatest composers conducting the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra in selections from their most famous works. The event was also recorded with this CD, for long a much sought-after collector's item, presenting most of the concert as it actually happened. Besides the choice of selections, which include many familiar themes from the movies, the pleasure is heightened by the fact that Alfred Newman, David Raksin, Miklos Rozsa, Bernard Herrmann, Johnny Green (then Executive Director of the Guild) and Dimitri Tiomkin were among the composers taking turns on the podium. The enthusiasm expressed by the record crowd at the Bowl that night is easily communicative.

Sax and Violence: Music from the Dark Side of the Screen

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Orchestrations, Arrangements, Musical Direction: Lanny Meyers; Featured Musicians: Lanny Meyers (piano), Bob Mair (bass), Ed Smith (drums), Paul Viapiano (guitar); Phil Feather, Bob Carr (reeds); Wayne Bergeron, Dennis Farias (trumpets/ flugelhorns); Robert Hioki, Ira Nepus (trombones); Stephanie Mijanovich (French horns); Kirstin Fife, Jean Hugo, Susan Modischy (violins); Jane Levy (viola); Stephanie Fife (cello); Album Producer: Bruce Kimmel; Engineer: Vincent Cirilli.

Selections: 1 Taxi Driver (B. Herrmann)(3:40); 2 The Double Double: Body Double (P. Donaggio)/Double Indemnity (M. Rozsa)(4:02); 3 Body Heat (J. Barry) (4:27); 4 The Grifters (E. Shire)(3:59); 10 The Blue Dahlia (V. Young)(5:17); 11 Point Blank (J. Mandel)(4:11); 12 Laura (D. Raksin)(4:17); 13 Fatal Attraction (M. Jarre)(4:38); 14 Diva (V. Cosma)(4:12).

Review: This is quite a concept: some of the most sensuous movie themes, arranged for and performed by a jazz band. It may not qualify as film music per se, but if one day you get tired of listening to the same old soundtracks you have played for the past twentysomething years, you might want to try these CDs and groove on their different sounds. The themes, by the way, are recognizable, but you still might discover some you didn't know, like David Shire's Farewell My Lovely, or Mark Isham's The Moderns, in the first CD; or Elmer Bernstein's The Grifters, and Victor Young's The Blue Dahlia, in the second. Performances vary from one CD to the next, and overall the first might be a tad stronger than the second.

Screen Themes '94

1995, Discovery Records.

Album Notes: Orchestrations and Arrangements: Emilio Kauderer, Michael Garson; The Michael Garson Orchestra conducted by Emilio Kauderer; Featured Musicians: Michael Garson (piano, keyboards, synthesizers), Emilio Kauderer (keyboards, synthesizers), Eric Marienthal (saxophones), Jorge

Patrono (drums, percussion), Dave Carpenter (bass), Grant Geissman (guitar), Marsden Smith (cello), Billy Mintz (brushes); Featured Soloist: Jessica Tivens (vocals); Album Producers: Michael Garson, Emilio Kauderer; Engineer: Dino Herrmann.

Selections: Forrest Gump (A. Silvestri): 1 I'm Forrest... Forrest Gump (3:17); Legends Of The Fall (J. Horner): 2 The Ludlows (2:46); The Lion King: 3 Theme (This Land)(H. Zimmer)(3:11); 4 Can You Feel The Love Tonight (E. John)(3:30) Jessica Tivens; Pulp Fiction (N. Diamond): 5 Girl, You'll Be A Woman Soon (3:33); Interview With The Vampire (E. Goldenthal): 6 Born To Darkness, Part 1 (3:26); Four Weddings And A Funeral (R.R. Bennett): 7 After The Funeral (2:16); The River Wild (trad.): 8 The Water Is Wide (3:42); True Lies (B. Fiedel): 9 Harry Makes His Entrance (2:23); The Shawshank Redemption (T. Newman): 10 End Title (3:43); Love Affair (E. Morricone): 11 Title Theme (3:28); Nobody's Fool (H. Shore): 12 Main Title (3:34); Little Women (T. Newman): 13 Little Women (1:52); Thirty Two Short Films About Glenn Gould: 14 Prelude No. 1 in C (from The Well Tempered Clavier) (J.S. Bach) (4:45); Immortal Beloved: 15 Sonata No. 8 in C for Piano, op. 13, "Pathetique" (L. Van Beethoven) (3:36); Corrina, Corrina: 16 Gymnopedie No. 1 for Piano (E. Satie) (4:17).

Review: Routine cover versions of some of the most prominent contemporary film themes, including works by Alan Silvestri, James Horner, Hans Zimmer, Elliot Goldenthal, Richard Rodney Bennett, Howard Shore, and... Johann Sebastian Bach and Erik Satie. Sometimes, the imagination of A&R people at some record companies stretch beyond the fathomable. At any rate, the musicians here are okay, not too terribly great, not too bad either. The themes are interestingly developed, but it's too synthetic, without much involvement or understanding about what the music is all about and why it was created in the first place. Johann Sebastian Bach...?

Sherlock Holmes: Classic Themes from 221B Baker Street

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Arrangements: Lanny Meyers, Bonnie Janofsky, Larry Moore, James Bernard; Orchestra conducted by Lanny Meyers; Featured Musician: Robert Zubrycki (violin); Album Producer: Bruce Kimmel; Engineer: Vincent Cirilli.

Selections: Sherlock Holmes: 1 221B Baker Street (P. Gowers)(2:37); The Seven Percent Solution: 2 Suite (J. Addison)(4:22); The Adventures Of Sherlock Holmes: 3 Main Title (C. Mockridge)(1:35); 4 Moriarty: Genius Of Evil (C. Mockridge)(:54); 5 A Study In Terror (J. Scott)(3:06); 6 The Universal Holmes (F. Skinner)(1:05); The Adventures Of Sherlock Holmes: 7 Moriarty: The Game Is Afoot (C. Mockridge)(:47); Young Sherlock Holmes: 8 The Riddle Solved (B. Broughton)(6:13); Sherlock Holmes: 9 The Red Circle (P. Gowers)(1:09); The Seven Percent Solution: 10 I Never Do Anything Twice (S. Sondheim)(5:53); The Adventures Of Sherlock Holmes: 11 Moriarty: Elementary (C. Mockridge)(:46); The Masks Of Death: 12 The Masks Of Death (M. Williamson)(1:37); The Hound Of The Baskervilles: 13 Main Title/The Legend Of The Hound (J. Bernard)(5:08); Dressed To Kill: 14 The Music Box (F. Skinner)(:40); The Private Life Of Sherlock Holmes: 15 Suite (M. Rozsa)(6:56); Without A Clue: 16 End Title (H. Mancini)(2:37).

Review: This elementary musical compendium gathers together 16 selections from 11 Sherlock Holmes movies or television series, from Cyril Mockridge's themes for the 1939 Adventures of Sherlock Holmes through Frank Skinner's omnipresently tracked music for all twelve of the Universal Holmes films of the 1940s, through James Bernard's doggedly relentless horror music for Hammer's The House of the Baskervilles and John Scott's eerie violin sonorities from A Study in Terror, to more recent filmic renditions as The Seven Percent Solution (John Addison), The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes (Miklos Rozsa), Without a Clue (Henry Mancini) and Young Sherlock Holmes (Bruce Broughton). Also included are themes from the British television programs, The Masks of Death (Malcolm Williamson) and Sherlock Holmes (Patrick Gowers). This is a very fine assortment of cues, nicely performed by an unnamed orchestra under the baton of Lanny Meyers. The CD contains much music hitherto unavailable, especially those wonderfully melodramatic scores by Mockridge and Skinner, and Bernard's elegantly cataclysmic Hammer music.

Historical Romances

1995, Marco Polo Records.

Album Notes: The Brandenburg Philharmonic Orchestra of Potsdam, conducted by Richard Kaufman; Score Reconstruction & Arrangements: William Stromberg, John Morgan; Album Producer: Klaus Bischke; Engineer: Gert Puhlmann.

Selections: Juarez (E.W. Korngold): 1 Overture (6:11); Gunga Din (A. Newman): 2 Main Title (2:27); 3 "Alright, I'll Sign" (2:55); 4 Across The Bridge/Battle At Tantrapur (6:21); 5 Reading The Poem (1:35); 6 Finale/End Cast (2:10); Devotion (E.W. Korngold): 7 Devotion (5:46); The Charge Of The Light Brigade (M. Steiner): 8 Main Title (3:51); 9 Calcutta (4:35); 10 Waltz (2:18); 11 Love Scene/March (4:26); 12 Moonlight (1:32); 13 "Charge!" (9:57); 14 Epilogue/Cast Credits (1:59).

Review: A lot of good film music from Hollywood's heyday is being re-recorded in Europe. Take for example these two albums: masterfully interpreted by the Brandenburg Philharmonic, in splendid up-to-the-minute digital sound, they focus on excerpts from swashbucklers which, in many cases, have not been heard in any other format, except as background music in the films for which they were written. Both are finds for film music fans who have been longing to hear these scores in full-blown stereo.

Particularly welcome here are the two long suites from Alfred Newman's Scaramouche and Max Steiner's The Three Musketeers in the first CD, as well as Newman's Gunga Din and Max Steiner's The Charge of the Light Brigade in the second. All four rank among the finest scores ever created for the swashbuckler and adventure genre, and their inclusion here makes these two CDs all the more desired and valuable.

One may argue with the fact that some tempi seem to be slightly off, or that the orchestra's performance is not always as tight as it could be, but those are minor imperfections that do not detract one iota from the power and sweep of the music and its overall interpretation.

The Prince and the Pauper

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: John Acoca.

Selections: The Reivers (J. Williams): 1 Suite (5:02); The Lost Weekend (M. Rozsa): 2 Love Theme (5:10); Jane Eyre (J. Williams): 3 The Carriage Ride To Thornfield (1:50); Between Two Worlds (E.W. Korngold): 4 Mother And Son/Piano Rhapsody (5:49); The Constant Nymph (E.W. Korngold): 5 Overture (8:12); The Specter Of The Rose (G. Antheil): 6 Ballet Waltz (4:11); The Madwoman Of Chaillot (M.J. Lewis): 7 End Title (4:22); Cleopatra (A. North): 8 Love Theme (2:24); Julie (L. Pennario): 9 Midnight On The Cliffs (5:15); Who's Afraid Of Virginia Woolf? (A. North): 10 Main Title (2:36); The Prince And The Pauper (E.W. Korngold): 11 Flirtation (2:14); Escape Me Never (E.W. Korngold): 12 Love For Love (3:18); Anne Of The Thousand Days (G. Delerue): 13 Overture (2:55); Henry V (W. Walton): 14 Prelude: London 1600/The Globe Theatre (3:52); 15 Touch Her Soft Lips And Part (1:32); 16 The Battle Of Agincourt/The Duke Of Burgundy's Speech (5:33); 17 The Agincourt Victory Song (2:26).

Review: This album belongs in the same category with the celebrated Classic Film Scores series on RCA Victor. In fact, it involves essentially the same people, producer George Korngold, conductor Charles Gerhardt, and the musicians from the National Philharmonic Orchestra. The program is reliable, interesting, and performed with all the right pauses and tugs. Erich-Wolfgang Korngold is given a prominent place here, with selections from Between Two Worlds, The Prince and the Pauper, and Escape Me Never. But the creative minds behind this album also saw fit to add themes from Miklos Rozsa's Lost Weekend, John Williams' The Reivers and Jane Eyre, Georges Delerue's Anne of the Thousand Days, Alex North's Cleopatra and Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?, and William Walton's Henry V. There are some odd choices, too, like Leonard Pennario's Julie, or George Antheil's The Specter of the Rose. But overall it's a solid program of seldom heard film themes, performed with the right amount of gusto and pathos by an orchestra that has many such recordings to its credit.

Review: Both compilations offer selections recorded for the Brunswick label by some of the most prominent stars of stage and screen in the 1930s. Among the classy gentlemen heard in the first CD are Louis Armstrong, Rudy Vallee, Cab Calloway, Al Jolson, Bing Crosby, Russ Columbo, Dick Powell, Louis Prima, Fred Astaire, and Tony Martin, all of them stars of the first magnitude. On the distaff side, Helen Morgan, Mae West, Ethel Waters, Lyda Roberti, Ruth Etting, Billie Holiday, Martha Raye, Dorothy Lamour, and Mary Martin are some of the names that pop up. All the songs were big hits in their time, and have become standards, and both collections are quite enjoyable.

Review: A principle somewhat similar to the one used in the two Legacy recordings listed above is at play here, with the selections coming from the RCA catalogue. The stars heard were all signed to the label at one time or another, with the difference that the two sets, instead of focusing on a given period like the ones on Legacy, take a broader view and encompass selections from the 1930s to the '60s. The only problem this causes has to do with sonic quality, which varies tremendously from cut to cut, and which is further brought into sharp focus because the tracks aren't presented chronologically. Don't let this detract you from enjoying the performances in either set, with Bing Crosby, Bob Hope, Mario Lanza, Harry Belafonte, Perry Como, Fred Astaire, Tony Perkins, and Robert Preston, among the luminaries in the first CD; and Debbie Reynolds, Lena Horne, Marilyn Monroe, Jeanette MacDonald, Helen Morgan, and Marlene Dietrich, in the second.

Naughty But Nice: "Bad Girls" of the Movie Musical

1993, Sony Music Special Products.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Dan Rivard; Engineers: Debra Parkinson, Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Thanks A Lot, But No Thanks (A. Previn/B. Comden/A. Green) (from It's Always Fair Weather)(3:44) Dolores Gray, The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, Andre Previn; 2 Naughty But Nice (H. Duke)(from Cabin In The Sky)(1:25) Lena Horne, The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, Georgie Stoll; 16 It (S. Romberg/O. Harbach/O. Hammerstein II)(from Deep In My Heart)(4:41) Ann Miller, The M-G-M Studio Orchestra and Chorus, Adolph Deutsch.

Review: Another fun compilation which brings together various female performers in songs with a central motif to them... naughty but nice. Most of the tracks were culled from the actual soundtrack albums, and have the advantage of being the "real" thing, as opposed to rerecordings. As for the "naughty" girls ready for their close-up here, the list is quite impressive: Rosemary Clooney, Ann Miller, Marilyn Monroe, Doris Day, Lena Horne, Gwen Verdon—quite a line-up.

War Films

Apocalypse Nam: The 10,000 Day War

1993, edel America Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Arch Stanton.

Selections: Apocalypse Now: 1 Ride Of The Valkyries (R. Wagner)(4:51) The Orchestre Symphonique de Radio-Tele-Luxembourg, Louis de Froment; Vietnam Texas (R. Stone): 2 End Credits (3:11); Flight Of The Intruder (J. Beal): 3 Trailer Music (3:26); The Deer Hunter (S. Myers): 4 Cavatina (2:49) Kevan Torfeh, Gregg Nestor; Vietnam War Stories (M. Snow): 5 Main Title and End Credits (4:04); Airwolf (R. Patterson/D. Milner): 6 Love Theme (1:39); Casualties Of War (J. Beal): 7 Trailer Music (2:04); Platoon Leader (G.S. Clinton): 8 Main Title (4:34); First Blood (J. Goldsmith): 9 It's A Long Road (2:53) The National Philharmonic Orchestra, Jerry Goldsmith; Purple Hearts (R. Folk): 10 Love Theme (6:17); Missing In Action (J. Chattaway): 11 March To Freedom/Main Title/Crossing To 'Nam (5:45); Braddock: Missing In Action II (J. Chattaway): 12 Lin's Theme (3:54); Missing In Action: The Beginning (B. May): 13 Sometimes You Gotta Fight/The Burning Bridge/The Worms/Final Battle/End Title (18:07); Platoon: 14 Adagio For Strings (S. Barber)(8:18) The Scottsdale Symphony Orchestra, Irving Fleming.

Review: This thematic CD offers selections from various scores written for war films, in an odd combination of soundtrack performances and cover versions. Some are quite interesting in this context, notably Robert Folk's Purple Hearts or Jay Chattaway's Braddock: Missing in Action II, which are not frequently found on compilations of this kind. But quite frankly, the inclusion of Wagner's "Ride of the Walkyries" and Samuel Barber's "Adagio For Strings" denotes a lack of imagination on the part of the A&R people who have put this collection together. There are enough selections that could have been used, instead, whether from well-known films or from more obscure ones.

Westerns

How the West Was Won: Classic Western Film Scores 1

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Nic Raine, Paul Bateman, Derek Wadsworth; Orchestrations: Christopher Palmer, Derek Wadsworth, Richard Bronskill, Nic Raine, Lee Holdridge, Ira Hearshen, Donn Wilkerson, Arthur Morton; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: John L. Timperly.

Selections: The Magnificent Seven (E. Bernstein): 1 The Magnificent Seven (5:50); High Plains Drifter (D. Barton): 2 Theme (4:12); Gettysburg (R. Edelman): 3 Suite: Main Title/Fife And Gun/The Gettysburg Address (recited by Daniel Massey)/Reunion And Finale (15:47); The Professionals (M. Jarre): 4 Overture (5:24); Buffalo Girls (L. Holdridge): 5 Suite (7:29); The Wild Bunch (J. Fielding): 6 Suite: Train Montage/All Fall Down (12:30); Wild Rovers (J. Goldsmith): 7 Bronco Bustin' (2:12); How The West Was Won (A. Newman): Suite: 8 Prelude (3:20); 9 The Land (3:54); 10 Cleve And His Mule (2:06); 11 Intermezzo (5:17); 12 Cheyenne Attack And Aftermath (8:07); 13 Finale (1:30).

Review: If sheer volume equaled quality, the Silva Screen label would be the most important label in the history of motion picture music; they seem to crank out half a dozen compilation albums a month, but the results, while well-intentioned, are often less than the sum of their parts. How The West Was Won is the first in an ambitious western film music collection, and it offers a good mix of the familiar (Elmer Bernstein's The Magnificent Seven and Alfred Newman's How the West Was Won), the unfamiliar (Lee Holdridge's tuneful Buffalo Girls and Dee Barton's spooky High Plains Drifter), and the unfairly overlooked (Jerry Fielding's brilliant The Wild Bunch, Maurice Jarre's rambunctious The Professionals and Jerry Goldsmith's bracing The Wild Rovers). Randy Edelman's Gettysburg fills out the bill, but it's the weak sister of this bunch, often dragging the album to a halt with its fatuous historical anthem. The treatments by Nic Raine and the untiring City of Prague Orchestra are equally hit-and-miss, with the more explosive Bernstein and Fielding material often coming across as clumsy and bombastic (and the tempos of The Wild Bunch are slowed down so much as to be unrecognizable). Jarre's The Professionals fares well, but High Plains Drifter is treated as too much of a traditional western melody. Buffalo Girls and High Plains Drifter are the only previously unavailable offerings, which means around 66 minutes of this 78 minute album is available in better-sounding versions on their original soundtrack albums.

Jeff Bond

Lonesome Dove: Classic Western Scores 2

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Nic Raine; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie, Nic Raine, Ira Hearshen, Jack Hayes, Leo Shuken, Jerome Moross, David Snell, Leo Arnaud, Christopher Palmer, Derek Wadsworth; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: John L. Timperley.

Selections: Lonesome Dove (B. Poledouris): 1 Suite (9:47); Heaven's Gate: 2 Sweet Breeze (D. Mansfield)(4:06); 3 Mamou Two-Step (D. Kershaw)(1:49); Old Gringo (L. Holdridge): 4 Finale (7:21); The Sons Of Katie Elder (E. Bernstein): 5 Main Theme (2:12); The Proud Rebel (J. Moross): 6 Pastorale (3:38); El Condor (M. Jarre): 7 Main Titles (3:21); She Wore A Yellow Ribbon (R. Hageman): 8 Suite (7:33); Blue (M. Hadjidakis): 9 The River (4:06); Red River (D. Tiomkin): 10 River Crossing (3:40); Hang 'Em High (D. Frontiere): 11 Main Theme (3:40); Red Sun (M. Jarre): 12 Suite (11:10); The Outlaw Josey Wales (J. Fielding): 13 The War Is Over (4:30).

Review: While some of these themes can be found elsewhere, notably in their soundtrack album versions, it seems a nice thing to have them compiled together here, played by an orchestra that seems to be getting better each time. But the best here is the inclusion of selections that are being recorded in stereo for the first time, like the suite from She Wore a Yellow Ribbon, or the one from Old Gringo. Also noteworthy are Basil Poledouris' suite from Lonesome Dove, and Maurice Jarre's Red Sun. The rest seems to be like a bit of padding, but who should complain when the performance is so vibrant and exciting?

The Wild Bunch: Best of the West

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: The Czech Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William Motzing; Arrangers: Christopher Palmer, Karl-Heinz Loges, Volker Rippe, William Motzing; Soloists: Michael Goltz (guitar), Giuseppe Solera (harmonica), Irmard Schneider (vocals), Zdenek Sedlvy (trumpet); Album Producer: Thomas Karban; Engineer: Malcolm Luker.

Selections: The Sons Of Katie Elder (E. Bernstein): 1 Main Title (2:10); Dances With Wolves (J. Barry): 2 The John Dunbar Theme (2:20); Silverado (B. Broughton): 3 Suite (4:50); High Noon (D. Tiomkin): 4 Theme (2:43); Once Upon A Time In The West (E. Morricone): 5 Suite (8:04); The Magnificent Seven (E. Bernstein): 6 Suite (5:35); Rio Lobo (J. Goldsmith): 7 Main Title Theme (5:12); The Alamo (D. Tiomkin): 8 Overture (3:54); Lonesome Dove (B. Poledouris): 9 Theme (3:02); The Blue And The Grey (B. Broughton): 10 Main Title/John Leaves Home (4:48); A Fistful Of Dynamite (E. Morricone): 11 Theme (3:59); TV Western Themes Medley: 12 Bonanza (J. Livingston/R. Evans/D. Rose)(1:45); 13 High Chapparal (D. Rose)(1:25); 14 The Big Valley (G. Duning) (2:42); 15 Little House On The Prairie (D. Rose)(1:52); 16 Rawhide (D. Tiomkin/N. Washington)(1:39); The Ballad Of Cable Hogue (J. Goldsmith): 17 The Ballad Of Cable Hogue (3:00); Young Guns II (A. Silvestri): 18 The Big Battle (3:20); Return Of A Man Called Horse (L. Rosenthal): 19 Main Title (5:31); Gunfight At The O.K. Corral (D. Tiomkin): 20 Main Theme (3:00); The Wild Bunch (J. Fielding): 21 La golondrina/End Credits (2:52); The Big Country (J. Moross): 22 Main Title (3:27).

Review: Another western theme compilation from Silva Screen, this one recorded by the Czech Symphony Orchestra, in spectacular sound. The selections are predictable, and instead of the routine themes from The Sons of Katie Elder, Dances With Wolves, The Magnificent Seven, and Gunfight At The O.K. Corral, it would have been nice to get something different for a change. Granted, the compilation also contains The Blue and the Grey, and The Ballad of Cable Hogue, which are rarer, but that's hardly sufficient to recommend this CD, particularly when there are so many others that are far superior. Performances are adequate, though the musicians sometimes don't get the tempi right, or let out a few quacks.

Review: Though frequently dismissed by purists as a lower class of filmmaking, the spaghetti western genre generated an unusually large number of films. Many are marked by their lack of subtext, their gory violence, and, often enough, their gritty, powerful scores written in the style pioneered by Ennio Morricone for the films of Sergio Leone, which started the whole trend.

This terrific collection, culled together from the vaults of Cinevox, the Italian label, introduces many scores which have seldom if ever been heard in this country. While the Morricone influence can be felt in many of them (notably in the distorted electric guitar chords meant to evoke the brutality of the landscape and its denizens), the many films covered here also reveal important composers who, like Luis Bacalov (winner of the Academy Award for The Postman in 1996), Piero Piccioni, Angelo Francesco Lavagnino, Riz Ortolani, and Armando Trovaioli, also contributed scores to more celebrated fares.

Taken together, the various selections in both sets (many of them only identified by the matrix numbers assigned during the recording sessions) denote a vibrant, often exciting musical genre that has made many fans over the years and continues to attract even today, long after the spaghetti westerns have faded from the screen.

Experts Review over 2,000 Significant Soundtracks

> "The thing I love about film music is that it is not a single 'type' of music. It's this weird subset that affects movies in fascinating and profound ways and often stands on its own as a unique listening experience."
> LUKAS KENDALL
> from the > Foreword

Whether you are a serious collector of musical scores or a movie fan looking for the soundtrack to a favorite film, this guide is essential.

Soundtrack popularity is reaching a phenomenal high, and VideoHound's Soundtracks is the first guide to provide substantial reviews of over 2,000 of the most popular and accessible CDs in the genre.

Its team of industry experts — led by Didier C. Deutsch — discusses the work of such legendary composers as Elmer Bernstein, Rodgers and Hammerstein, Miklos Ròzsa and Stephen Sondheim and thoroughly covers the new wave of soundtrack composers that includes Danny Elfman, Randy Newman and Marc Shaiman. Each reviewer has a different specialty, but all of them share a passion for the music.

Grammy Award nominee DIDIER C. DEUTSCH, a record producer for 30 years, is currently working with Rhino Records and Sony on soundtrack compilations.

LUKAS KENDALL, author of the Foreword, is the editor and publisher of Film Score Monthly.
